

exposure made after the sun had come up. Note the heavy cloud of smoke still hovering over the orchard. The radio pole in the left is used by the Soil Conservation Service in gathering snow information. The wires crossing the road lead to the automatic frost alarm. Only about 1/6 of the pots in the orchard were burning when this picture was taken.

April 1941

Smudging at Medford